The ultimate Greek odyssey

...with leading TV historian Professor Michael Scott

IT IS nigh on impossible to watch the summer blockbuster Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again without wishing you, too, were jetting off to enjoy the crystal-clear seas and azure skies of the Greek islands.

So for anyone inspired by the hit movie, this exclusive new ten-night holiday is the ultimate way to discover the wonders of Greece while also enjoying the relaxing delights of a cruise around the Aegean Sea.

After a night in Athens, your very own Greek odyssey will begin with a seven-night, full-board cruise on the Star Flyer, a magnificent four-mast, full-rigged ship which is as spacious and elegant as it is luxurious.

Your island-hopping cruise includes stops at Skiathos and Skopelos, two of the irresistible places where the original Mamma Mia! was filmed.

Relaxed and revitalised after your luxury cruise, you will then enjoy a further two-night stay in the extraordinary city of Athens, where you will be joined by our special guest: the popular historian and TV presenter Professor Michael Scott.

Michael, who presents his latest series of Ancient Invisible Cities on the BBC next month, will accompany you to the Acropolis and will also give an exclusive private talk and Q&A.

'I can't wait to share with you my love of Athens - both ancient and modern,' he says. 'Join me as we delve into the city where democracy was born, and where artistic and architectural treasures still rank among humanity's greatest creations.'

REASONS TO BOOK Sail on the Star Flyer

Relive the magic of Mamma Mia!

During your seven-night cruise around the Aegean, you will enjoy stops at idyllic destinations including Skiathos and Skopelos, the two beautiful Greek islands where the original Mamma Mia! movie was filmed.
